

Jocelyn's

BY MISS SOPHIA MEYER.

JUNE.
The Northern is calling, the west is
in type.
Cloud shadows are trailing over mountains of time.
The pictures are color, the days of death
are merged in the glow of morn,
and gone.
But clouds are white as the dreams
of the pure.
The hue of the sky when dawn
and dusk.
There's a lift and a thrill in the
moods back home
as it calls to me world. It is June.
It is June.

The wild morning glory swings low
in the breeze.
A whisper is stirring the tops of the trees.
And white doves blossoms, inviting
the hands
of children are splashing the bare meadow lands.
The pines are sending their songs to
the seas.
Lush grasses reach up to a small
boy's knees.
And the pecking bird, catching the
mosquito, has a song.
I am off to the world. It is June.
It is June.

A mother is standing alone by a gate.

This sun is declining, the day has
given out.

Her cheeks are the pink of clouds in the west.

The roses that were so young
at her bower.

Her hair is auburn, and blossoms are slight.

With the flowers of dust and the
gloves of light.

And leaves that tremble in
the morning breeze.

Telling the world, it is June.

Gold, Mother Earth, is the Mother Earth.

It is June.

What will America have to do to make her worthy of such a blessing?
For such benevolences that have been so abundantly showered upon her.
When a blessing has been received one must appreciate that blessing, else-for enhancing the ability to receive and appreciate the blessing, one must make mistakes of his own because he fails to make it possible for us to know what we have been given and to make it possible for us to keep what we have been given and to make it possible to extend and expand our capital for even greater things we need to prepare.
Illustrate by persons the ways that are right and the ways that are wrong so high the hand of criticism than others may see the ways and a devoted to the ways of justice, peace and truth.
